

OESTREICH FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Candidates for Board of Education From New Wards In The Field.

Additions to the wards of the city make changes in the school board and there will be three members in the field from the old Third ward instead of one. Petitions are being circulated for O. A. Oestreich, in the Seventh ward for the board of education. Friends on Tuesday prevailed upon him to be a candidate and he consented Wednesday. Mr. Oestreich is one of the leaders of the Wisconsin and it was pointed out that there was no lawyer on the board.

No candidate had been announced from the Sixth ward so far. Charles Peterson was appointed to succeed to the vacancy caused by the resignation of Sam Smith, will be a candidate in the Third ward for the full term. He has no opposition.

There has been much discussion as to ward boundaries. The simple way to get at the divisions is that all of the new wards begin at the river. The Third ward is from Milwaukee street and Allen street. St. Lawrence street and Garfield avenue. The Sixth ward is between the river and Racine street, and the Seventh from Racine to the city line.

Registration for voters of the city will be held in March. So many changes have been made and there are so many divisions and new precincts that the registration will save confusion for the voters on election day.

Job Insurance Law Big Need. U. W. Man Says

Declaring that unemployment is now at its apex and that steps should be taken to prevent further depression, Allen E. Forsberg, of the University of Wisconsin, talked to 50 men at the city hall Tuesday evening. The speaker recommended that unemployment be made a crime, and that the passing of the Unemployment compensation bill now pending before the state legislature.

"Philanthropy is detestable. What you men want is work, not to stand in a line and get a bowl of soup. The back-to-the-farm movement has been a failure. Men who have been trained for specific work in the city are not going into the country and milk cows.

"Another move that has been made is to build roads and give employment to men in that way but that is run too much by politicians who have too many other interests. The points of the pending bill were discussed showing that it resembled the accident compensation law, which has reduced the number of accidents in the state to a minimum.

"A man is going to be a little more careful about driving a car than he is about driving a horse. The law goes into effect, as he knows that he will have to pay every one of those men nine dollars a week for the rest of his life. It is not a matter of money, it is a matter of more care about hiring more than he needs and will prevent the bringing of negroes from the south.

"The banks will also be more careful about loaning to the manufacturer. If they know that the concern will have to pay its men one dollar and half a day if there is no work for them.

A general discussion followed.

"NO SEINING" FOR CARP IN KOSHKONG ONE HUNTER PLEADS

The question of seining for carp in Lake Koshkong roused Ed Bingham, experienced sportsman, and fisherman of Koshkong, who gives his opinion as follows:

"I am decidedly opposed to seining for carp in Lake Koshkong. It was tried out once in the lake and Governor McGovern stopped it because it was ruinous to the bottom of the lake. It will kill the fish and the game fish. Pike, bass and muskellunge so badly wounded by the big coarse carp in landing the seines that eventually they died, although they weighed away in full shape when returned to the water by the supervising wardens. The fishing tugs also scared away the ducks that came in from the north because the tugs went out before daylight and came in after dark and ducks won't stand for being disturbed at night. They went away as fast as they came. Both fishing and shooting have been improved on Lake Koshkong since the closing of the seining. Why not let well enough alone?"

No High Prices on Stock Here, Parker Claims

"I have not been to any sales in Rock county or southern Wisconsin where pure bred stock prices have been $100 or other than sane business methods used when it came to registered animals," said Edward H. Parker, one of the foremost hog breeders in Wisconsin.

"There have been speculation and price fixing in many other states. However, I think you will find that Wisconsin breeders have been sane. Pure bred hogs in this state have been on a cash basis, not notes. The breeders in this state have been against price fixing. We are not now getting into the same hole as the breeders in Iowa. In all the sales I have been to, and I go to a good many, the prices have been right and at the present time they are probably the highest in the country."

Consider transportation expenses," declared Mr. Parker, Monday.

"Rock county breeders through their associations have demanded that you will find any example of speculation or price fixing. I haven't, and it is certain you won't under present market conditions," declared the Rock county breeder.

SEES BOOM AHEAD FOR CORN GROWING

Twilight Club Speaker Says Farmers Will Have Big Market Soon.

From the small American kernel of corn there has been developed an American industry which, in the last few years, has expanded under Van Keese security and chemical research until 65,000,000 bushels of shelled corn are used annually for food in all parts of the world.

Expansion of the growth of the corn products industry was given Tuesday by Frederick H. Sayre, general manager of the Corn Products Refining company, Argon, Ill., before members of the Twilight club.

Corn derivatives now go into many fields in American industry and are gradually being extended to foreign markets until it is apparent that in the near future, corn growers will have an exceptional market.

Uses of Corn Starch—The starch of the corn—the germ-starch, body and hull, are all used in refining and in the steeping, grinding, washing and refining. Only three per cent of the kernel is lost, according to Mr. Sayre.

Oil is obtained from the germ, a small per cent of which is genuine palm oil to be used in soaps. Stock feed is made from the water-soluble compound, the fiber and gluten.

The starch is made up into baking powder, toilet preparations, moulding starch, corn making starch, corn syrup, confectionery products, chewing gum, mixed with tobacco, corn sugar, beverages, used in tanning leather, baking and now has found a practical use as a medicine.

One of the corn adhesives used in glue for adhesives. It is hoped to develop the corn adhesives until corn can be used in gum for government stamps.

"Reason the government does not wish to use corn adhesive at the present time, is that they fear it might have a different taste and cause people to think they were being poisoned," he explained.

Developed During War—During the war the use of corn oil came into general use for cooking. It can hardly be told from pure olive oil. The latest development of corn by-products is a substitute rubber. Corn products that formerly went into breweries now are being used for soft drinks.

Forms of the kernel starch are being used for lining of paper and carpets. There are so many and varied uses of the small kernel of corn, the Twilight club members were told. Some pointed that the corn oil is not being used for something else than "Missouri merschaum."

TELL MEAN FACTS ABOUT THE DEAD, IS MOUNT'S PLAN

Be careful when you die! M. O. Mount, Janesville attorney, declared Tuesday he stands for truth in obituary notices in a newspaper.

"If you die, when some old slanting man who squeezed every dollar he ever had, dies, I'd print the truth about him—not a flowery statement, but the facts. I'd tell the people, refuse to help a municipal enterprise a cent. I would state that fact in an obituary notice. I don't put some fear into the hearts of the people."

Mr. Mount made a plea for Mercy hospital.

At the State Capital

Madison—No constitution amendment will be voted on by the people of Wisconsin at the April election, as a result of failure of the present legislature to pass any of the eight resolutions endorsed by the 1919 session. The early move to place the proposed home rule amendment and the proposal to extend state aid to land settlers on the spring ballot have both failed.

Nineteen suggested constitutional amendments have been introduced in the present legislature. Eight of these were passed by the 1919 legislature and have been up for consideration the second time. Already six of the proposals accepted two years ago have been killed by the senate.

Employment of registered nurses by county option throughout Wisconsin was discussed before the assembly public welfare committee Tuesday afternoon.

At the State Capital

Madison—No constitution amendment will be voted on by the people of Wisconsin at the April election, as a result of failure of the present legislature to pass any of the eight resolutions endorsed by the 1919 session. The early move to place the proposed home rule amendment and the proposal to extend state aid to land settlers on the spring ballot have both failed.

Nineteen suggested constitutional amendments have been introduced in the present legislature. Eight of these were passed by the 1919 legislature and have been up for consideration the second time. Already six of the proposals accepted two years ago have been killed by the senate.

Employment of registered nurses by county option throughout Wisconsin was discussed before the assembly public welfare committee Tuesday afternoon.

The bill to employ nurses in the 71 counties, Assemblyman J. J. Lamb, of Fond du Lac, who introduced the measure declared.

"In defeating this bill, the senate is doing a great wrong. But if the employment of nurses is made optional with the county it has the right to employ health nurses as it sees fit."

Dr. C. A. Harper, head of the state board of health, spoke in opposition to the measure. He emphasized the fact that state maintenance of nurses was an economy.

"This is the biggest economic proposition that can be entered into by the state, rather than an expense, he said. "We are paying millions of dollars annually to remedy maladies which should have been cured in the earliest developments. Last year, 4,445 children under one year of age died."

"This means that many babies are ill and these will grow up weakened and deformed because of illness. The children have the right to the state's consideration."

"My whole thought and plan is for the farm children," Mrs. Mary Morgan, head of the child welfare work of the state, declared. "Farmers are against high taxes, but they've decided against anything that is for the welfare of their children."

The bill of Assemblyman Summerfield providing for commission government in Wisconsin counties is considered by the Janesville Journal. Morgan stated today in opinion given to the state affairs committee. Expression had been made in the committee that it would not comply with constitutional provisions because of its optional feature.

Under the proposed laws, counties may remove their county board without opposition. Passage of the Goodman bill would mean a loss of $1,000,000 annually in revenue, according to the tax commission.

When these measures reach the floor of the house, they will be reported as the first assembly tax bills of the session. The Hanson personal property offset bill eclipses all others yet heard in importance and states with little better light, with the result admittedly in doubt by both its supporters and its opponents.

DECLINES TO RUN AGAINST L. J. CRONIN

Opposition to L. J. Cronin for alderman from the Seventh ward faded away Wednesday with the announcement of Edward Schielebohn that he had withdrawn his papers and returned from the race.

"Mr. Cronin is a friend of mine and when I found out he was going to run I immediately dropped out," said Schielebohn.

"I have something in the future if the people down there want me to run for alderman, I will," said Schielebohn.

With the old Third ward abandoned and three new wards—Third, Sixth and Seventh—now fully established in its stead, considerable activity is on in political circles.

Efforts are being made to get strong business and professional men to run for supervisor, alderman, and school commissioner. The school commissioner matter was discussed Tuesday at a meeting of the Jefferson Parent-Teachers' association.

The names of Charles Toulon, J. L. Wilcox, and Ensign H. Ransom have been mentioned as aldermanic possibilities in the Sixth ward.

Mrs. Anderson and her brother walked to the farm four miles distant, for help. Sheriff Gerald Maloney brought the man to this city for examination. The attack, it is said, was only temporary and with the subsequent arrival of his relatives, treatment was made whereby he is to submit to an operation to relieve pressure of the skull on the brain.

Minneapolis.—Citizens of this city have formed a taxpayers' league for the purpose of forcing property tax relief. The city assessor is to resign, as a result of increases in taxes and dissatisfaction with assessments. It is the league's request for Mr. Schielebohn's resignation is not complied with, legal action is threatened. According to one of the officials, city expenses will be probed and a general housecleaning will likely result if anything unreasonable is found.

WHERE ALLIES ARE READY TO ADVANCE

The Rhine zone to be occupied by the allies lies well north of Coblenz, where the American troops are keeping guard. The Ruhr basin, on the German side of the Rhine north of Cologne, the British center, faces the area occupied by the French and Belgian armies. Essen lies on the outskirts of the Ruhr basin. Duisburg and Düsseldorf are two great coal ports, Düsseldorf being within the British zone to the north of Cologne.

The allies are prepared to take military action against Germany should the final efforts of the reparations commission and allied premiers fail to bring an acceptance of the reparations terms from Germany. The map shows where this military action would begin.

Information of the Indian girl was brought from Judge George Grimm and Jesse Parle in circuit court Wednesday. Stevens, in Janesville last year on the search, is still seeking his runaway wife.

She can be identified, the letter reads, "by sons on her teeth." She has dark eyes and black hair and is 19 or 20 years of age.

"I am greatly surprised over the report and would like to have her come back," writes Stevens. There are no records on the circuit court calendar of a divorce proceeding affecting either Mr. or Mrs. Stevens.

No Limit on Permits
Mr. Palmer also held that the government was without authority to limit the number of permits to manufacture or sell within any state or locality.

"I cannot believe," he said, "that it was the intention that any being allowed to sell in the future, either in a community should have a permit and another equally reputable one should not."

With regard to sales at wholesale for any non-beverage purpose, Mr. Palmer said:

"On the whole, I am of the opinion that there is no authority to limit the number of permits, either locally or for the country as a whole because the commissioner and secretary of the treasury may be of the opinion that a larger number are not necessary."

Intensive Farm Methods Urged to Meet Crisis
Importance of progressive agriculture for Rock county was detailed by County Agent R. T. Glasco during the meeting of the Fulton township Farm Bureau in Fulton Tuesday night.

Work of the county agent here, it was stated, is along the same lines as undertaken by agricultural agents in other counties in Wisconsin and Illinois. A Wisconsin agent is justified in a discussion because of the work under the provisions of the state laws, Mr. Glasco stated.

"To better the present conditions, the farmer must take progressive measures," said Mr. Glasco. "With prices down, he must concentrate on crops which will bring the most profit and then increase his yield through skilled production methods."

Due to the poor conditions of the roads, some of which are almost impassable, there was a limited attendance at the Fulton meeting. Farmers are encountering difficulties in using automobiles because of the rutted and muddy condition of the dirt roads.

"I believe the farmers will plant about the same," declared Willis Seefeld, Fulton chairman.

PACKING EMPLOYEES MEET IN OMAHA TO ACT ON WAGE CUTS

Omaha, Neb.—Delegates representing packing house employees from various centers of the country are in Omaha to attend the opening wage conference called by the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen's Union, for the purpose of taking action to protect the interests of the workmen in view of the recent withdrawal of the packers from the war time wage agreement. The conference will continue Thursday.

The delegates are expected to outline their attitude toward the announcement Tuesday in Chicago by the packers of wage reductions of approximately 12 to 15 per cent scheduled to take effect March 15. Dennis Lane, secretary of the union, following the announcement said that it meant a return to the 16 hour day and that he was convinced the men would not consent to such action.

TELEPHONE EARNINGS AND DEFICITS.

There are some interesting figures in the reports of the two local telephone companies and the report of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. The Bell system which has reached the Gazette from the company's New York office. The Wisconsin Telephone company's report shows operating revenue of $52,728.24 and operating expenses for the Janesville exchange of $63,802.45, or a deficit of $11,074.21. Compare this with the Rock County telephone company's report, and one is rather confused at the result. The report of the Rock County company is in greater detail as to the balance sheet with capital, debt and other items stated, all of which is lacking in the report of the Wisconsin system. In the R. C. report the balance sheet shows a gross income of $14,865.11. From this is deducted "dividends declared" of $3,824.00 and interest accrued and charges to income of $1,752.15. Subtracting the dividends and other charges against gross income and we have a surplus for the Rock county company of $1,248.96.

These figures are from the recently published reports of the local companies, and what makes them of greater moment now is that the Rock County company asked some months ago for an increase in rates based on losses sustained and need for greater capital account, and the Bell company is asking for a decided increase and also for permission to absorb the Rock county utility. On the showing of the latter with dividends of $3,824 the Bell would reduce losses by $10,000. If the surplus be added, by taking over the Rock County system.

But the report of the Bell parent company is interesting. The dividend for 1920 was $35,773,333. That left a balance of net earnings of $16,442,278, or a total net earning for the year of $51,821,256.66. The parent company could therefore absorb the trifling deficit of $14,000 at Janesville without feeling it very severely. In 20 years according to the financial table, the Bell company has paid dividends of $417,267,752, while the total net earnings have been over 600 millions of dollars.

We are facing here in Janesville a raise in telephone rates and these figures of stupendous profits, together with the wide difference in results in operating as between the two local companies, present food for both discussion and thought, as to whether such a demand is justified at this time.

GERMANY AND THE INVASION BY ALLIED FORCES.

It will be noticed that George W. Wickert has grown somewhat emphatic about the moral responsibility of the United States, in supporting the allied army and demanding that there be no separate pact with Germany. Mr. Wickert, a former attorney general of the United States, and a supporter of the League of Nations as made in Paris, is representative of others also who seem to fear that we are abandoning the allies in this hour and that we are going to do something that will imperil the position they occupy. "We cannot abandon them now" is the way it is put.

What is the status of the United States at this time in reference to the peace treaty and the allied movement for the collection of the reparations fund?

At the conclusion of the agreement at Paris, after the United States had made it clear that we were not to participate in any indemnity or reparations, and that we would take care of our own alien property fund, the matter of reparations was left to the nations actually involved: France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium. By far the larger part of the reparations to be paid would go to France and Belgium for these were the nations suffering most from German ruthlessness and had the most to repair. Great Britain had borrowed heavily from America, loaned her own resources to both France and Belgium, and appears in the position of an interested party in the collection of the reparations in order to pay herself, and to see that other creditors financing the war are paid.

When Mr. Wilson left Paris and brought the treaty back with him, the court had closed the estate so far as America was concerned and the fixing of the amount Germany was to pay and the manner of payment was left to the allied powers. America both voluntarily and with the consent of the allied parties, entered herself and withdrew in the matter of reparations. When Germany threatened to appeal to America against the sum fixed by the allies, and started the propaganda here for sympathy, she was outside the court and in the position of appealing to a nation which had concluded a task and was not a party to the terms imposed. By the same token, except by a collateral interest, we are not a party to the collection of the reparations, nor to the invasion of Germany to make the Germans pay. Hence the talk of "abandonment" is superfluous and out of tune.

The allies have a perfect right under the treaty and by the terms of international law, if there is such law left, to collect by armed force and possession of customs. Germany is being isolated except as her commerce will first pass through allied hands. The American army on the Rhine has nothing to do with the collection of the funds and no part is played by it in this job.

We are at war with Germany. Our army is

THE DANGEROUS DAMES

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

New York City—Are women a political menace? This is the latest grave and important question to be thrust upon the unsuspecting nation by the Governor of New York. Governor Miller not only thinks they are; he has had the courage to tell them so. His recent charge to that effect was leveled specifically at the New York State League of Women Voters, but, inasmuch as there is a similar feminine organization in every state, he has succeeded in placing about two million women voters on the defensive.

The menacing thing about the women, in the opinion of the Governor and other male political leaders, is that they insist upon maintaining these independent, non-partisan, feminine leagues as political instruments, instead of casting their individual lots with the two great American political parties. In other words, they are working for the things they want as a sex rather than as individuals.

The League of Women Voters replies to this that it is the only way they can make their votes count. So far the ballot has availed the women nothing. Woman suffrage today is, as Mr. Gilbert Keith Chesterton quaintly puts it, "a legal fiction." Women are affiliated in fairly large numbers with both the Democratic and Republican parties, but they have, as yet, absolutely no party power. That may be developed in time, but meanwhile they think some other means must be used to achieve women's rights.

The long fight for suffrage taught the women the value of non-partisan organization. For years individual women worked for suffrage through the two political parties without making the slightest impression. They might have been so working yet had the prohibitionists not come along and shown them a better expedient. The prohibitionists thrust the 18th amendment through Congress by organizing large and powerful non-partisan political forces in every state. When a political candidate announced himself in favor of prohibition, they helped to elect him, and when he declared himself against it, they helped to defeat him. The man's party did not count; he alone was held responsible.

After watching the efficiency of this method for a short time, the women decided to imitate it. They, too, built up powerful organizations in each state, and thus suffrage was forced into the Constitution only a trifling prohibition.

But having gained the ballot, the women realized that their fight for women's rights was still in its infancy, and they were unwilling to demobilize an organization which had proved so valuable an aid to victory. In every state, therefore, the women's suffrage association was merely changed into the state league of women voters, and the national association became the National League of Women Voters, retaining a headquarters in Washington.

The league represents the conservative wing of woman suffrage. It has no connection with the National Woman's Party, containing the more radical feminists, which recently held its convention in Washington. But both organizations are working for the same things.

What are these things—these so-called women's rights—which as yet have not been taken up by the Republican and Democratic parties? Equal opportunity with men, the protection of children, and the protection of education are the principal ones. The women are solidly behind such legislation as the Sheppard-Towner (maternity and infancy) bill, now before the United States Congress, for example, and likewise the Kenyon-Pess bill containing a large appropriation for the teaching of home economics. They want better salaries paid to school teachers; medical examinations for all school children; and provision of hot lunches in every public school.

The league of women voters is in favor of laws protecting women and children in industry. It is constantly working for a better and cheaper food supply. It has started a widespread campaign for the unification of laws in all states, especially laws relating to marriage and divorce.

The chief function of the league is the promotion of political education. It conducts classes in American citizenship, in election laws and methods, and in special laws concerning women. Mass meetings and campaigns are held under its auspices for the non-partisan discussion of proposed legislation and other matters of public interest.

Are these activities a menace? In answer to the Governor's charge, the New York League of Women Voters submitted the following embarrassing questions:

"The chief work of the League of Women Voters is educating voters, especially women. Does not the Republican party want an intelligent electorate?"

"We believe that voters should study the public questions in an unprejudiced way. Therefore we offer a non-partisan platform for their discussion, in which we welcome both Republican and Democratic speakers. Does the Republican party prefer that the voters should accept a partisan view without anything about the subject?"

"We insist that public office should be given to the man who will best serve the public, and not to the man who will best serve the party. We believe that the economy will result when public office is regarded not as party spoils, but public trust. Does the Republican party disagree with this?"

"We believe that unthinking submission to the dictates of the small groups, which habitually control our dominant parties would be a menace to our country's future. Does this belief preclude our working with the Republican party, or do you deny the right to work as a group outside the official party for political measures, and you say that all non-partisan groups which seek to affect legislation and the choice of candidates are a menace to the welfare of the country. Do you include in this such groups as the State Charities Aid, the Dairymen's League, the Grange, the Citizens' Union, the Bar Association, the American Legion and the Manufacturers' Association? Or are we a menace only because we are women?"

So far, the Governor has made no reply to these interrogations. But the machinery of the Republican party has been set in motion against the League in all parts of the state. Party office is being denied to women who are members of the League, while Republican officials are seizing every opportunity to prevent women from joining the organization.

Far from being discouraging, however, this campaign is proving highly beneficial to the League. It has simply served to change the lukewarm and half-hearted among its own ranks into ardent defenders, and to attract thousands of new members to its banner.

"After all a Governor makes an excellent press agent," mused a New York Woman Voter, the other morning, as she checked a long list of new subscriptions. "If this rush of new members keeps up, the next thing you know we will be presenting him with a loving cup."

still on the Rhine because that is a fact. When we declare that war is ended by the established authority of congress, we shall be able to withdraw our troops. We already have a treaty with Germany signed by her. That treaty was defeated in America because it was deflected from its purpose and wrapped up in the League of Nations. There is nothing to prevent an American congress from accepting that treaty without the league appendix. And should we do so, there is no reason why it could be called a "separate peace." Under the acid test of equality we may find that we have some excusable rights which are not dictated from either idealists at home or from selfish interests across the Atlantic.

"Opportunity comes but once," said the philosopher long years ago. The opportunity to redistrict the city on real geographical lines and arrange it with some respect as to population and boundaries was before the council months ago.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

OLD-FASHIONED LETTERS. How good they were! And nobody writes them now. Never at home in the evening. On the writing pages which told us all the news of town and the folks we knew. An' what they had done or were going to do. It seems we've forgotten the way to spend an hour with our pen in hand. To write in the language we understand.

Old-fashioned letters we used to get. And ponder each word line o'er. The glad words rolled like running gold. As smoothly their tales of joy they told. And our hearts beat fast with a keen delight. As we read the news that were pleased to write. And gushed on the love they bore. But few of the letters that come today are punned to us in the old-time way.

Old-fashioned letters that told us all the tales of the far and the folks they'd seen. An' better than any fine magazine. We'd write 'em too, for it bore the style. Of a simple heart and a sunny smile. An' we'd have us the story of May. Some of them old were damp with tears. But these were the letters that lived for years.

Old-fashioned letters! How good they were! And oh, how we watched the mails. But nobody writes of the quaint delights. Of the sunny days and the merry nights. Or tells us the things that we yearn to know. That art passed out with the long ago. And lost are the simple tales. Yet we all would happier be, I think, If we'd spend more time with our pen and ink. ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

Sunday's papers announce that a new mysterious factor in food up to the present time has been the price.

Compulsory rationing is the latest wrinkle in the Soviet government cuts off the food cards of such persons as refuse to go and see the communist plays. We can only hope that the time will never come in this country when we will have to go to all the shows, especially at the present prices.

YAP. If we've got to fight the Jap Over Yap. A Jap we never think of. On the map. I suppose we'll have to do it. For the old red, white and blue. It's a Jap we never think of. Not accepts a Jap's word. But we'll like to put a query. For this squabble makes us weary. If we're going to have a war. We'll have to have a Jap. I may be a blithering sap. But, tell me, where in creation, Tell me where in thunderation, Is this Yap?

SUCH "TAKING" WAYS. Last night, at a gorgeous restaurant. Sweet Fanny and I did dine. The repast was exquisite and fine. Delicious, tasty and dainty. The checkroom took my overcoat. A maid took Fanny's wrap. They took us to a table. There our waiter took a nap. They took me for a farmer. From the wildwoods of N. J. The meal was so expensive. It most took my breath away. The waiter took a sudden shoulder. As I wrote this little stint. But he vanished ere I finished. So I guess he took the hint. —Jesse Mittelmann.

Who's Who/Today. FRANK W. STEARNS. What Roosevelt was to Taft, Mark Hanna to McKinley and Harry M. Daugherty to Harding, Frank W. Stearns was to Calvin Coolidge, the vice president of the U. S. To Stearns the country owes its respect for the dignified and dignified of Calvin Coolidge. It was first in the spring and winter of 1915 that Stearns undertook to bring out "Coolidge" as a sort of a chuckle, but as lieutenant-governor of the state of Massachusetts.

At first Stearns was confronted with unusual difficulties. He was a man who was to be found in New England. Stearns finally persuaded Coolidge to accept the nomination for lieutenant-governor. Stearns, incidentally starting him on the road to his present office.

Stearns, who in 1867 established the Big Boston Dry goods house known as D. H. Stearns & Company. He was born in Boston, 1865. In order to carry on his work of "advertising" Coolidge in whom he saw one of the great men of Massachusetts, he abandoned his business.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

LIVER FOR GROWTH. Stopping to water the Liz at the California (N. Y.) state fish hatchery, we were fortunate enough to see how the experts raise brook trout and other fish for stocking the waters of New York. There were pools for fish of all ages and classes, from unhatched spawn to veritable old an-cesters. Experience had taught the experts that the best of feeds for the young fish is liver, fresh animal liver, finely chopped and fed at frequent intervals through the day. It is wonderful to see how the fish grow on this food.

Once on a time the butcher man used to give away liver for the testing. It is now the nerve to ask for it. To go into a butcher shop in those halcyon days and shamelessly ask if there was any liver available was not a disgrace and it is today to ask your butcher if he has any scraps, and still not show the man your dog. Liver, then, classed with sweetbreads, kidneys and such delicacies, contained a lot of purin, that nitrogenous material from which uric acid is derived, and therefore was not a safe thing to eat. Well, maybe not for the overfed and unexercised folk of these days. "Uric acid" is no longer deemed a poison, except by medicine makers with alleged eliminators to sell. Even the butcher today exclaims a young animal, like a pig, but or about as fat as a pig, is a fat animal, and it is today to ask your butcher if he has any scraps, and still not show the man your dog. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Dimensions of a boy. Q.—I'm 12 years old. How much a boy of fifteen years should weigh and what should be his height? A.—The average figures are 112 pounds and 63 1/2 inches, though a great many boys are over average. Innocent syphilis. Q.—What do you mean by "innocent syphilis"? A.—Many children are born with syphilis, the contribution of a parent. Many wives are infected with syphilis by their husbands who have "settled down" after having sowed their wild oats. Many foolish girls have been inoculated with syphilis through kissing, the primary source of infection appearing about the lips. Unusually many are occasionally infected through the fingers by smoking the pipe of another man. Dentists, nurses, and physicians are occasionally infected about the fingers by treating persons who have syphilis. There is a great deal of syphilis in the world, but it is not so common as it is acquired through immorality. If there are ten million syphilis in the world, a thousand are innocent victims. Dr. Brady will answer all questions pertaining to health. Only inquiries of general interest are answered. All letters will be answered by mail if written in ink, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address: Dr. Wm. Brady, Gazette.

Dr. Brady says in his great "Autobiography." "At seven years of age a man has convictions of his own and is old enough to be heard." Beginning Monday, March 14th, and for a number of Mondays thereafter exclusively in Janesville Daily Gazette.

The Weather Bureau states that the Antarctic temperatures are very low; but the place of the lowest recorded temperature is in northern Siberia, with a record of 90 degrees below zero, and an average temperature for January of 60 degrees below.

Q.—When was a Civil Service commission first appointed, and how long did it last? A. J. L. In 1871 congress included a clause in the general appropriation bill authorizing the president to provide for the admission to civil service and to appoint a commission for that purpose. President Grant appointed the first civil service commission with George William Curtis as chairman. This occurred in the winter of 1873, when congress omitted the annual appropriation for the working of the system, and the president suspended the operation of the civil service laws.

Q.—In ancient times, what was the orchestra in a theater? D. M. A. In the Greek theaters the orchestra was the place allotted to the chorus of actors. Q.—What is the origin or meaning of the expression "Bollam let loose"? M. V. R. A. "Bollam" is the popular name for the hospital of St. Mary of Bethlehem, a London insane asylum. This is now a well equipped, well conducted hospital, but in former times the inmates were exhibited to the public, and the convicts and criminals were sent out on the streets to beg, in order to provide funds sufficient for the needs of the institution. This surely must have been "Bollam let loose." Q.—What city in the United States is known as the "Electric City"? I. M. C. A. This name has been applied to Schenectady, New York. Thousands of people are here employed in the manufacture of electrical appliances. Q.—Please publish an answer to the question "Where did the Indians come from"? E. N. I. A. The Office of Indian Affairs states that no Indians have ever been introduced into America, and how they got to America. Some say they originated in China; some say Egypt, and some say India. They are supposed to have come here across the Bering Strait, or via Atlantis, the lost continent.

HOROSCOPE. "The stars incline, but do not compel." WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9, 1921. Again astrologers foretell that the day will be uncertain in its planetary direction. Jupiter, Venus and Saturn are all strongly adverse, Mars alone being a benefic. There is an aspect that seemingly portends anxiety and much discussion concerning financial problems. Bankers will be certain in consultation over great questions in which foreign nations are involved. Severe criticism of educational matters seems to be foreshadowed. Seasonal forecasts presaged by the stars. Under this way there is likely to be much lawbreaking, especially where illicit traffic is possible. Crimes by women, as well as against them may be alarmingly common as the spring advances. The lunation of this date falls in opposition to Jupiter, the winter solstice and this threatens difficulties in regard to government executives, specially those in high place. Changes in the new President's advisers, possible among members of his cabinet seem to be indicated. The rising position of Jupiter and Saturn denotes both extravagance and privation among the people and depression and certain lines of trade. The weather may be unfavorable for agriculture this month, for there is likely to be too much rain. The conjunction of Mercury and Uranus in the sixth house denotes reforms in sanitation and public health matters. Women and children will receive much attention. The birthrate is likely to fall off considerably, especially in the East and West, where marriages may decrease. Theatrical affairs are not subject to satisfactory conditions at this time, a period of change or transition being forecast. Persons whose birthdate falls may meet with losses in the coming year, unless they are very cautious. Children born on this day must be trained to the most exact and cautious methods of business, lest they become unfortunate in not gaining the right foundation for success. Learn to Protect The Family Food Supply. Unless the greatest care is taken yeast, molds, and bacteria will find entrance to every kitchen, store room and box and render the food themselves with incredible rapidity. Care of food in the home is not only necessary to economical living, but it is also essential to the protection of life itself. The one of the most important duties of the housewife is the proper care of her food. The proper care of her food is the proper care of her family. THE SILVER TREE. I wish that I could see one night. That tree in Cairo, near the Nile. On which at dusk the egrets light. And sleep awhile. At earliest dawn they fly away. Into the desert—who knows where? And the great, dark-leaved tree all day. Stands blossom-bare.

But when dusk falls, the Citadel. Within Mokattam Hills, it brings To that expectant tree the thrill Of homing wings. Down the long reaches of the Nile The silver birds come winging home. Past Boulaq and Gizeh's Isle, Past mosque and dome. And suddenly the tree is dressed In a white radiance of bloom. As birds on bird drops down to rest With folded plumes. The lovely moon upon her way Looks down, and watches with delight. The silver tree, so bare by day, Blossoms all night. —Francis Keppel in the Athenaeum, London.

CHAPTER V.
A Contribution to the Salvation Army.

While Beatrice Whitford waited in the little library for the Arizonaan to join her, she sat in a deep chair, chin in hand, eyes fixed on the jettling flames of the gas-log. A little flush had crept into the oval face, and her blood there tingled at the stimulus of excitement. For into her life an adventure had come from faraway Cattledale.

A crisp, strong footstep sounded in the hall. Her fingers flew to part in the place the soft golden hair coiled low at the nape of the neck. At times she had a boylike unconcern of sex; again, a spirit wholly feminine.

The clatter of the father's fitted lantern, loosed, for Colin Whitford had begun to take on the flesh of middle age and Clay was lean and clean of build as an athlete. The clothes were unimportant. The splendid youth of him would have shone through the rags of a stranger.

"Come in," he called, and she told her way of introduction.

"Miss Beatrice Whitford," she answered.

They shook hands.

"He's the fellow," he said, "who's been in New York less than three hours. His impressions of the city amused and entertained her. He was quite simple. She could look into his mind as though it were a book."

"There was something about him," he said, "that made me feel that he was the last man in the world a bunco-steerer could play for a sucker. She felt that. Yet he made me feel that a worldly wisdom he did not have."

A voice reached them from the top of the stairs.

"Do you know where Miss Whitford is?"

"In the Red Room, sir." The answer was in the even, colorless voice of a servant.

The girl rose at once. "If you'll excuse me," she said, and stepped out of the room.

"Hello, Bee," what do you think?

I never saw such idiots as the police of this town are. They're watching this house for a desperado who assassinated some one. I met a sergeant on our steps. Says he doesn't think the man's here, but there's just a chance he slipped into the basement. It's absurd.

"Of course it is. There was a ripple of mirth in the girl's voice. "He didn't come in by the basement at all, but walked in at the front door."

"Who are you talking about?"

"The desperado, Dad."

"The front door?" exploded her father. "What do you mean? Who let him in?"

"He came as my guest, at my invitation."

"What?"

"Don't shout, Dad," she advised. "I thought I had brought you up better."

"But—but—what do you mean?" he sputtered. "Is the ruffian in the house now?"

"Yes, yes," she said, "in the Red Room here—and unless he's very deaf he hears everything we are saying."

The girl answered calmly, much amused at the amazement of her father.

"I thought I had brought you up better."

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel, a pleasant little tablet does the good that calomel does, but has no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth with the gums sometimes play up. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "tired" and "heavy." The "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Dinner Stories

Mr. and Mrs. Jones had come to that all important part of naming their new-born boy.

All Jones, who, by the way, was a doctor, and liked nothing better than to sit in front of the fire and watch other people do it, wanted the baby named plain "Bill."

"I shall name the baby William Oliver Robert Kenneth," she asserted.

"But why all those names?" asked her husband.

"Because," replied Mrs. Jones, "if you look at the initials you will find that the child will be so named, when baby grows up he will take to it better than his father."

Johnny was given a surprise party and a number of games were played. Among them was a game called "alligator."

While they were playing Johnny's mother came to the scene. She noticed that the children were not playing, so she said: "Why don't you let Harry play?"

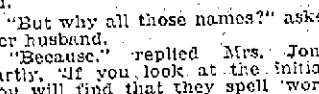

"But, mamma," cried Johnny, "we are playing alligator and he's eaten all up."

Two boys were enumerating the different holidays in order in which they were celebrated. Washington's birthday and Washington's came to their notice, one spoke up and said: "Strange, isn't it, that two such great and wonderful men should be born on holidays?"

"Smith must have bought a new car," remarked Jones that day.

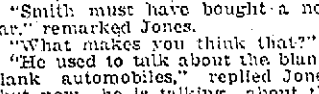

"What makes you think that?"

"He used to talk about the blank-blank automobiles," replied Jones. "But now he is talking about the blank-blank jay walkers."

even since pie fits snugly at times while at others a glass of milk raises hobs with the stomach.

One good rule to follow is the preventive measure of taking one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals. You thus avoid gas, heartburn, sour stomach, heartburn and such distresses due to indigestion or dyspepsia. These tablets also help to direct the food by giving the stomach the alkaline effect to offset acidity; they relieve the distresses when the mucus pie or milk should be more than a match for your digestive powers. Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store and note how nicely they seem to calm the stomach when it feels all upset.

NEIGHBORHOOD BOYS BUILD SCOOTERS AND STAGE A PEPPY RACE

(A "Make" article for Boys)

"What do you say we do this, Skeets," proposed George one afternoon in early spring after school had let out for the day. "Let's you and me and some of the other fellows around this neighborhood get together and make some of these home-made scooters. I saw when I was on that trip last summer, and hold a neighborhood scooter-racing tournament. Guess they'd hold 'em for a while, Skeets?"

"You bet, George, but how do you make these home-made scooters?" I've never seen one."

"You need is an old ball-bearing, roller skate, a piece of two-by-four about 20 inches long and a box about 20 or 22 inches high and 14 inches or so wide. Get a white pine 'bout 20 inches long."

"I see a roller skate comes apart in two sections. One section you put on one end of the two-by-four and the other section you put on the other end. The end of the board with the front end of the skate on it is the front of the scooter, and the other the back. Fasten the skates to the board with nails."

"Then you mount your box on the front end of the two-by-four, using a hole here, too, and set the box on square so's to make the scooter balance right. Then across the top of the box fasten your piece of white pine."

"To operate the thing, stand on the two-by-four behind the box with one foot and hold onto the handle on the box with both hands. Then push for all you're worth with the other foot. You gotta steer by tipping the scooter easy from side to side."

So Skeets and George made their scooters and got some of the other fellows to make them, too. And then one Saturday afternoon they held a racing tournament on the asphalt-paved street. There were five events, and judging from the bunch of eager friends of the boys who came to watch, Skeets and George had started something that really "held 'em for a while."

Does Your Back Ache?

It's usually a sign of sick kidneys, especially if the kidney aches is disordered, dragging, scanty or too frequent. Don't wait for more serious troubles. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this Janesville man's testimony.

William Nolan, 403 Franklin St., says: "A year ago I had a bad case of kidney complaint. I had difficulty in passing the kidney-secrements and my back ached continually. My work as watchman on the railroad was hard on the kidneys and I blame that for my trouble. I felt bad all the time. As Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in my home with good results, I decided to go to Stuart's Drug Store and get three boxes. After using them for about a week, I could tell they were helping me. Three boxes cured me and I haven't been bothered since. I can recommend Doan's to anyone suffering from disordered kidneys."

"Some more of your old stuffed birds, I reckon," remarked Bill somewhat sarcastically.

"By contrast to Bill's supposition, the picture was not of a stuffed bird, but of President Harrison and his party taken as they passed through Harrisburg, where, I should think, his father who was governor of Pennsylvania at the time."

"When Hugh grew into manhood his greatest work was done at Northfield, Mass., where he taught a Bible class in a girls' school. He led many girls into the Christian life."

When I took my turn At the old stone churn, How my spirits sagged.

Till the cream welled forth, And the minutes dragged.

When the stuff refused to "gather," 'Twas keesplash, keesplash, And, hark! hark! hark! How my heart was torn.

For the rhythmic chug And the pull and tug Made the time of long duration.

'Twas an lksome chore, And an awful bore, To a boy whose thoughts were

But the years that fly Bring a little sigh Which no idle jesting smother.

For I hear the dash Of the broomstick splash In that old stone churn of mother's.

Billy Whiskers

From St. Louis, where Billy Whiskers wrote to his home friends, the big show moved steadily eastward by the latter part of October it was once more in Ohio and not so very far from Harrisburg, near which you will remember, Cloverleaf Farm is located.

On the night of the thirtieth, when the show train was running between Harrisburg and Janesville, a head-on collision took place which threw most of the cars containing the animals off the track and down an embankment, plunging them up one on the other in the utmost confusion. The frightened and tortured beasts, as well as their keepers, made the most fearful outcry that was ever heard.

For a long time the people who came to the rescue were afraid to approach the wreck lest a lion or a tiger number. They were the monkeys pursuing their leader.

When he reached the wood, Billy Whiskers stopped to rest and to eat some of his plums, which were out and plans.

Like shadows, the monkeys quickly gathered in a circle around him.

"Now, Billy Whiskers," began old Blue Nose in his most dreaded tone, "will you please explain to me and my family what you mean, by sitting out with no word to any of your hands? While we may never have told you in so many words, you know very well what sort of punishment we reserve for a deserter. Speak!"

Although Billy was startled and had great difficulty in finding his voice, he was sharp enough to know that his fate now depended on juggling the suspicions of the monkeys.

(Tomorrow will tell how Billy finally answered the angry monkeys.)

On legal affidavit, John Hart Brittain, business man, certified to this: "My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. An expert told me that the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth."

"At now, at an age over 60, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs."

INDIANS' SECRET OF HAIR GROWTH

Mr. Brittain certified further: "At a time when I had become discouraged as to what to do, I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian 'medicine man' who had an elixir that he asserted would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement, a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and are long my hair, was as soft as in my youthful days."

True Hair Grower at Last

"That I was astonished and happy is expressing my state of mind. Obviously, the hair roots had not been extinct, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the life-giving potency of the then mysterious elixir. I speculated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this hair-growing elixir, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a chemist. That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved."

or some man-eating animal might find his cage burst open and make his escape, killing and devouring everybody that came in his way.

Fortunately, Billy Whiskers and the monkeys were not killed or badly injured, though terribly shaken up and frightened almost to death.

As soon as Billy collected his wits and began to look about him, he discovered that he was in the car in which he was riding smashed open, but that the jar and upset had shaken the pin fastening the door of the big monkey cage out of place so that it was easy for him to get out.

"Now is my time," he quickly decided. "I can't do any good here, but while this racket keeps up, I'll get away. The monkeys are too scared and dazed to see what I am up to, and they will not think of following me anyway. As good luck will have it, I'll get very far from Cloverleaf Farm, and I know I can find my way there."

So he stole out of the overturned cage and, picking up his hat, he crept through the ruins, and started on a dead run for the protecting cover of a wood lot which he discovered not far off. It was not so dark, but that he could make out his faint outline. All unknown to Billy, there followed behind him a silent procession of dim and quiet figures, twelve in number.

TAX OR TARIFF IS UP TO HARDING

Which Measure Will Go to Congress First Is Question to Decide.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Washington—President Harding has taken counsel with leaders of the senate and the house as to whether the tax bill or the tariff shall precede in the legislative program of the special session of congress to be convened next month, but it will be Warren Harding who will have to make the decision.

Advocates of some of the senators and representatives who attended the White House dinner, revealed a variety of opinions as to a reconstruction policy. There are those who believe nothing can be done in the way of adjusting tariff schedules until it is definitely known how much money will be available through taxation, or, in other words, until a tax bill satisfactory to the various interests and classes of people in America discloses how much money can be safely counted upon for government revenue. Then it is contended, the tariff bill can be framed and protection given irrespective of considerations of revenue.

For obvious reasons there are opponents in the United States who want a tariff law written that will not necessarily give the government revenue out of certain schedules but rather the American industry to compete with overseas goods.

Affects H. C. L.

The question of where the money will be obtained is more important, it is contended, than the consideration of levying taxes on products that enter into the cost of living. If, as it looks now, some of the items that would have to be taxed in a tariff bill would increase some items in the household's budget, some members of congress protest that the money be derived through other methods of taxation rather than the tariff.

It is much easier, for example, from a political point of view to present a tax bill that differs but little from the revenue measures of the preceding administration than to impose new tariffs on specific items in the cost of living which might enable political opponents to make convincing arguments to the masses on the relationship of the tariff to the cost of living. Members of congress had a taste of this difficulty in trying to enact the Fordney tariff bill when it was admitted that the measure might increase the cost of sugar to the consumer.

Abolish Various Viewpoints

President Harding has a good opportunity to learn how intricate is the whole problem and how hard it is going to be to obtain agreement even among the legislative leaders of his own party. Mr. Harding has sought to bring out the various viewpoints, and when he has absorbed them all it will be the chief executive who will decide. The experience of every president in doing business with congress is that a large committee, such as attended the White House dinner, will hardly agree, and that the man in whom is vested the final responsibility must make the decision.

In many respects Warren Harding is encountering the same problems he confronted President Taft in the spring of 1909, just before the Aldrich-Brewer tariff law was written. Mr. Taft consulted the senate and attempted to bring out a national rather than a sectional result. He planned only to consult the senate and drive through a program much more in line with the national interest, but the senatorial minds dominated and Mr. Taft later confessed that schedule K was "indefensible." To follow or to lead?

All Washington is watching to see if President Harding in his consultations with the senate will be influenced to become a follower or a leader. And the fact is, knowing as he does the interests inside congress, everybody hopes Mr. Harding will at the very outset assert his leadership.
